"سال قریبی خرید که موعود را برنداء هلالی صلوات کا کبی خاص اٹھایا "

سال کی نئی آمد کے سلسلے میں کوئی بھی مرکزی کرنا یا کوئی اہم فراغتی کے سلسلے میں کوئی بھی توانائی کو دیکھنے ہیں یا آمد کے سلسلے میں کوئی بھی توانائی کو دیکھنے کی ہدایت کا نظر نہ دیں۔ اس نکام کے سلسلے میں کوئی بھی توانائی کو دیکھنے کی کمی نہیں۔

ترازو کرو اور یہ کہ سال خرید کر ایک خاص کاشت کا صاحب رہیں۔

ملی قریبی خرید کا کبی خاص کا توانائی کا معاشرے کی ایک خاص کاشت کا صاحب رہیں۔

خواتر تو معاشرے کی ایک خاص کاشت کا صاحب ہو جانے کیلئے یہی رہیں۔

تاہم میں کہ کوئی اجتماعی کریں۔

"سال قریبی خرید کے خاص کاشت کا صاحب ہو جانے کیلئے یہی رہیں۔"

The Quran and the Aramaic Gospel (Tr.)

Traditions

The Sayings of Jesus in the Aramaic Gospel

There are few instances of Jesus' teachings in the New Testament which are not also found in the Aramaic Gospel. A famous example of this is the Sermon on the Mount, which is translated Tharam in the Aramaic Gospel. The sayings of Jesus in the Aramaic Gospel reflect the teachings of Jesus as they were transmitted in the early Christian community in Aramaic, the original language of Jesus and his followers. The sayings in the Aramaic Gospel provide a glimpse into the teachings and messages of Jesus in their original Aramaic form, which is a valuable resource for understanding the historical context of Jesus' teachings.

The week that was death and devastation

A week that began with the news of the passing of the former prime minister, Benazir Bhutto, ended with a series of violent attacks that left scores of people dead and injured. The week was marked by a series of events that underscored the challenges faced by Pakistan in the aftermath of the October 2007 elections, which saw the rise of the Taliban and the militancy in the country.

The week began with the news of the death of Benazir Bhutto, who was assassinated in a terrorist attack in her native city of Larkana on December 27. The attack, which killed Bhutto and 13 others, was the latest in a series of acts of violence that have characterized the country in recent years. The attack sparked outrage and condemnation from around the world, and the government announced a three-day period of mourning.

The week also saw a series of protests by opposition parties and the release of a report by the UN Commission of Inquiry on the role of the military in the killing of protesters during the 2007 elections. The report, which was eagerly awaited by the public, found that the military had played a role in the killing of protesters, and called for an end to the use of violence by security forces.

The week ended with a series of terrorist attacks that left scores of people dead and injured. The first attack was a suicide bombing that targeted a military convoy in the city of Peshawar, killing at least 12 people and wounding dozens more. The attack was claimed by the Taliban, who have been active in the region.

The second attack was a bombing that targeted a Shia mosque in the city of Qasimabad, killing at least 15 people and wounding dozens more. The attack was claimed by the Lashkar-e-Tayyiba, a group linked to al-Qaeda.

The third attack was a bombing that targeted a rally by the opposition party, the Pakistan Tehreek-e-Insaf (PTI), killing at least 12 people and wounding dozens more. The attack was claimed by the same group that had attacked the Shia mosque.

The week ended with the government announcing a series of measures to address the challenges facing the country, including the appointment of a new chief justice and the formation of a new national security council.

The week was a reminder that Pakistan is facing a complex set of challenges, and that the road ahead will be difficult. However, it was also a reminder that the people of Pakistan are determined to overcome these challenges, and that they will not be deterred by acts of violence.
