The Holy Prophet (sa) replied that to continue on fighting in battle while having taken off your armour. Thus, Hazrat ‘Auf (ra) took off his armour and continued fighting, until he was martyred by Abu Jahl in the field of battle.

First Host of the Holy Prophet (sa) in Madinah

When the Holy Prophet (sa) migrated to Madinah, he stayed at the home of Hazrat Abu Ayyub (ra), until the Prophet's Mosque and his residence were constructed.

Hazoor (aba) related the famous incident of the Holy Prophet's (sa) in Madinah and how God guided his camel as to where to stop, and it was there that the mosque would be built. When the Holy Prophet (sa) inquired as to who lived closest to that place, Hazrat Abu Ayyub (ra) informed the Holy Prophet (sa) that it was his home, and thus the Holy Prophet (sa) stayed there.

Hazrat Abu Ayyub (ra) had a two story house, and he wished for the Holy Prophet (sa) to reside in the upper level, however the Holy Prophet (sa) decided to reside on the main level, so that it would be easier for guests to come visit him.

However at night, Hazrat Abu Ayyub (ra) and his wife spent the entire night worrying, due to the fact that their beloved master was sleeping on the main floor, whilst they were sleeping above him on the upper level. This was due to their extreme level of respect and love for the Holy Prophet (sa).

Furthermore, some water spilled on the upper floor, and Hazrat Abu Ayyub (ra) feared that it would drip to the bottom floor, thus he immediately dried it up with his own cloak. The next day, when they expressed their sentiments to the Holy Prophet (sa), he agreed to reside on the upper level of the home.

Hazrat Abu Ayyub (ra) participated in all battles alongside the Holy Prophet (sa). Hazrat Abu Ayyub (ra) relates that on the day of Badr when they were arranging themselves in rows, some of them had stepped forward out of the row, upon which the Holy Prophet (sa) instructed everyone to remain behind him.

Reliability of Hazrat Abu Ayyub (ra) with Regards to Narrations

(ra)

Hazoor (aba) presented a narration in which two companions had a difference of opinion as to whether the Holy Prophet (sa) used to wash his head whilst in the state of Ihram. In order to settle the matter, one of the two went to Hazrat Abu Ayyub (ra), and asked as to whether the Holy Prophet (sa) used to wash his head whilst in the state of Ihram. Hazrat Abu Ayyub (ra) replied by showing him that the Holy Prophet (sa) would put some water in his hair then pass his hands through his hair from front to back.

Hazrat Abu Ayyub (ra) also took part in battles alongside Hazrat Ali (ra) during his Caliphate. Hazrat Ali (ra) trusted Hazrat Abu Ayyub (ra) a great deal; this is evident from the fact that when Hazrat Ali (ra) moved to Kufa, he appointed Hazrat Abu Ayyub (ra) as the governor of Madinah.

After the demise of Hazrat Ali (ra), Hazrat Abu Ayyub (ra) travelled to Egypt twice. One time, he travelled there despite his old age, because he heard that the governor of Madinah, Hazrat Uqbah, narrated a particular narration of the Holy Prophet (sa) which he wished to hear from him. Thus he travelled there solely for this purpose. The second time he travelled there was to take part in the battle against the Romans.

Hazoor (aba) presented another narration in which after a battle, Hazrat Abu Ayyub (ra) passed by some prisoners, where he saw a woman crying. He inquired as to why she was crying, and came to know that she had been separated from her son. Upon this, he located her son and returned him to her. Then he spoke to the person who was in-charge of the spoils and the prisoners and informed him that he heard the Holy Prophet (sa) say that whoever separates a mother from her child will be separated from their loved ones in the hereafter.

Hazoor(aba) commented that there is a lesson in this for everyone, and those who raise allegations against Islam should ponder over their own state. This is the level to which Islam cares for people, yet recently there have been reports from America regarding immigrants where children were separated from their mothers, to the extent that if they were reunited, some children could no longer recognise their mothers. However Islam says that mothers should not be separated from their children.

Attention to Hygiene

Hazoor (aba) narrated an incident in which Hazrat Abu Ayyub (ra) met someone whose finger-nails were very long. Upon seeing this he said to him and those around that they ask very high-level questions regarding the faith and what the Holy Prophet (sa) used to do in certain situations, but this does not mean that they should disregard their personal hygiene.

Hazrat Abu Ayyub (ra) never stayed back from participating in battles. There was however only one battle in which he did not partake, due to the fact that a younger man was made the commander. However later on, Hazrat Abu Ayyub (ra) would regret the fact that he remained behind, saying, 'why should I care who has been made a commander over me?'

Demise of Hazrat Abu Ayyub (ra)

Hazrat Abu Ayyub (ra) passed away during a battle against the Romans during the era of Hazrat Mu'awiyah. He was buried in Rome near the palace of Constantinople.

In the end, Hazoor (aba) stated that this concludes the narrations regarding the Badri Companions. He said that now he would highlight the details of the Four Caliphs who succeeded the Holy Prophet (sa) in detail.

Hazoor(aba) also stated that in the future, if any more material came to light regarding any of the companions whom he has mentioned, then he will present those narrations in the future.
