Summary of the Friday Sermon delivered by Ḥaḍrat Khalifa-tul-Masīh V (May Allāh be his Helper) on 10th September 2021 at Mubarak Mosque Islāmabad, Tilford, UK.

Huzoor (May Allāh be his Helper) continued with the series of sermons regarding Ḥaḍrat ‘Umar (May Allāh be pleased with him).

Huzoor (May Allāh be his Helper) said: During the Khilāfat of Ḥaḍrat Abu Bakr (May Allāh be pleased with him), the siege of Damascus lasted for many months and the Muslims gained victory after Ḥaḍrat Abu Bakr (May Allāh be pleased with him) had passed away. Since these events occurred in the era of Ḥaḍrat Abu Bakr (May Allāh be pleased with him), I will mention their details when I speak about him, God willing. For now, I will recount the events that took place after the conquest of Damascus.

After the conquest of Damascus, Ḥaḍrat Abu ‘Ubaidah sent Ḥaḍrat Khalid bin Walīd on the Biqa’ expedition. After gaining victory there, Ḥaḍrat Khalid sent some troops further to the spring called Maisanūn. However, a group of Romans attacked the Muslims from the rear and martyred many of them. Consequently, this spring came to be called ‘Ainus-Shuhadā’ (Spring of Martyrs).

The conquest of Damascus took place in 14 AH. Ḥaḍrat Abu ‘Ubaidah wrote to Ḥaḍrat ‘Umar (May Allāh be pleased with him) that Heraclius was stationed at Hims and sending troops to Damascus, to which Ḥaḍrat ‘Umar (May Allāh be pleased with him) said that Damascus was the fortress and capital of Syria and it should be conquered first, but at the same time some cavalry should be sent to Fihl. When the Roman forces saw the advancing of the Muslims towards Damascus, they inundated the surrounding land with water, thus closing all the roads and also stopping Heraclius' relief forces from reaching Damascus. The Muslims, however, remained steadfast and the Christians were forced to agree to a peace settlement. However, due to the stubbornness and arrogance of the Romans, the diplomacy of Ḥaḍrat Muʾādh bin Jabal and Ḥaḍrat Abu ‘Ubaidah’s direct talks did not succeed and the war could not be averted. The Roman army is said to have numbered between fifty to a hundred thousand soldiers. When the war broke out, the Roman general was overawed by the bravery of the Muslims and wanted to retreat, but Ḥaḍrat Khalid called out the Muslims in such a way that they overcame the enemy. The Christians were trying to delay fighting in the hope of getting help, but, on the advice of Ḥaḍrat Khalid, Ḥaḍrat Abu ‘Ubaidah continued fighting. The next day there was a fierce battle that lasted about an hour after which the Romans lost their footing and fled. At the behest of Ḥaḍrat ‘Umar (May Allāh be pleased with him), the local people kept possession of their property, land, houses and places of worship, while the Muslims only acquired some land for building mosques.

Conquest of Baisān and Tiberias: The news of the defeat of the Romans had spread in the Jordanian territories. Therefore, when the people heard of the advance of Shurahbīl and his army towards Baisān, they barricaded themselves within the fort. After a few days of siege and minor skirmishes, reconciliation was reached with the people of Baisān. Similarly, the people of Tiberias also offered peace which was accepted.

Conquest of Hims in 14 AH: When Ḥaḍrat Abu ‘Ubaidah and Ḥaḍrat Khalid bin Walīd laid siege to Hims, the weather was extremely cold and the Muslim soldiers had no equipment to cope with the weather, hence the Romans thought that the Muslims would not be able to fight for long. Heraclius sent an army to help the people of Hims, but Ḥaḍrat Sā'ad bin Abi Waqās, who was fighting in Iraq, stopped it. Heraclius fled to Ruha’ promising to send help to Hims, but when the people of Hims saw the resilience of the Muslims, they agreed to a peace settlement.

The battle of Marj-ur-Rūm took place in the same year. When the news of the encampment of Ḥaḍrat Abu ‘Ubaidah and Ḥaḍrat Khalid at Zul-Qalā’ reached Heraclius, he sent Tuzara to counter them. When Tuzara reached Marj-ur-Rūm, Shanas Rumi also reached there and joined him. One night when Tuzara vacated his place, Ḥaḍrat Khalid followed him. On the other hand, when Yazid bin Abu Sufyan heard of Tuzara’s movement, he stopped him from the front. In this way, the Muslims surrounded the Tuzara’s army from both sides and defeated them. At the same time, Abu ‘Ubaidah fought Shanas in Marj-ur-Rūm and won.

Thereafter, Ḥaḍrat Abu ‘Ubaidah conquered Hamāt, Shaizar and Salamyah and then turned to the Syrian coastal city of Latakia.

The conquest of Latakia took place in 14 AH. Ḥaḍrat Abu ‘Ubaidah devised a war strategy whereby he dug cave-like pits at night and then lifted the siege in the morning. The townspeople thought that the siege had ended and opened the gates. Meanwhile, Ḥaḍrat Abu ‘Ubaidah returned with his army overnight and hid in the pits that had been dug. When the gates of the city opened in the morning, the Muslims attacked and conquered the city.

The conquest of Qinnasrīn in 15 AH: Ḥaḍrat Abu ‘Ubaidah sent Ḥaḍrat Khalid to Qinnasrīn. When he reached Hazir, the Romans countered him under the leadership of Mīnās and lost. The people of the area pleaded before Ḥaḍrat Khalid that they had been forcibly made to join the war and should be pardoned. Ḥaḍrat Khalid accepted their excuse. However, some Romans fled from there and fortified themselves in Qinnasrīn. Since they could find no way out of there, they agreed to a peace settlement after a few days, but Ḥaḍrat Khalid decided to punish them for contravening the treaty. Thus, the people of Qinnasrīn fled to Antioch, leaving behind their wealth and possessions. When Ḥaḍrat Abu ‘Ubaidah came, he announced that Ḥaḍrat Khalid’s decision was based on justice, but, acting with compassion, gave amnesty to the people of the city. Therefore, the fugitives from Antioch also returned upon the condition that they would pay Jizya.

The conquest of Caesarea took place in 15 AH. It is written in Al-Farooq that Caesarea was invaded by Ḥaḍrat ‘Amr bin ‘Ās in 13 AH. After the death of Ḥaḍrat Abu ‘Ubaidah, Ḥaḍrat ‘Umar (May Allāh be pleased with him) ordered Yazīd bin Abu Sufyan to go ahead with the attack. He laid siege to the city with an army of 17,000. However, after he fell ill in 18 AH, he appointed Ḥaḍrat Amīr Muʿāwiyah in his place and left for Damascus where he later died. Ḥaḍrat Amīr Muʿāwiyah continued to lay siege. One day, a Badri Companion, Ḥaḍrat ‘Ibādah bin Sāmit, addressed the Muslims with passion and said, “O Muslims! You have not been able to move the Romans because there are people among you who are either traitors or are not sincere.” He then passionately urged them to seek martyrdom. Eventually, one day the Romans came out for battle and suffered a humiliating defeat. About eighty to one hundred thousand Roman soldiers were killed that day.

At the end of the sermon, Huzoor (May Allāh be his Helper) informed the Jamāʿat of the sad demise of the following members and announced to lead their funeral prayer in absentia:
